Few war films

a boxy little

Designed by

Simple but Fiat

124 Spider

sturdy construction,
the VW Type 82

Kübelwagen

(which translates as
'bucket car'

because of its similarity to a metal bathtub on wheels) was

based closely on
the legendary VW

Schema

Beetle. Its Fiat

124 Spider

winning design features included air cooled engine (the absence of a radiator meant the engine was less vulnerable to bullet damage), a lightweight, flat and smooth underbody that allowed the car

to slide over
the surface when its wheels were sinking into
sand, mud or
snow,
independent
suspension,
portal gear hub
reduction and
self-locking
differential.
Because the body

Get Free Schema

was not a load-bearing part of the structure of the vehicle it could easily be modified to special purposes.

Several dozen variants of the 'Kübel' were developed and built during the war including its cousin the Schwimmwagen. The VW Type 128 and 166 Schwimmwagen (which means floating or swimming car) were amphibious four-wheel drive off-roaders. Like the Kübel, they were used widely by the

Get Free Schema

Wehrmacht and the Waffen-SS during the Second World War. The Type 166 Schwimm is the most numerous mass-produced amphibious car in history (14,265 between 1942 and 1944). Erwin Komenda,

Get Free

Schema

Ferdinand Fiat

Porsche's first

designer,

developed an all-

new unitized

structure for

the Schwimmwagen

swimming car.

When crossing

water a screw

propeller could be lowered from

the rear deck
engine cover and
coupled to the
engine's crankshaft to provide drive.
The 'Schwimm'
also shared many of the Kübel's mechanicals. The appeal of the Kübel lived on long after the
war's end when a

Volkswagen Type

manufactured by

VW from 1968 to

vehicle, which

the German Army
but was also
sold to the
civilian market
as the Kurierwagen in Germany, the Trekker in the UK, the Thing in the US, and the

Mexico. In
recent years
both the Kübel

and Schwimm have acquired
something of a
cult status
among military

worldwide,
